

Is your AI up to date?

A one-page checklist, in plain English

WHY IT MATTERS

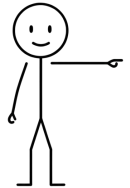

An AI learned from writing collected up to one date, like a diary that stops on one page. Anything newer may be missing, unless the AI can look things up.

1 Know the date idea

The knowledge cutoff is the date the AI's learning material ends. After that date, the diary has no pages.

Our plain-English wording of the term.

2 Look for the date

Some model pages list the cutoff. Check there instead of guessing.

Try: Search for the model's name plus "knowledge cutoff".

Not every model lists one.

3 Check if search is on

Some AIs can search the web for newer information. Check your app's help page to see if it can search the web.

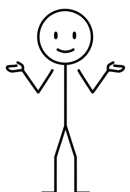

It depends on the app. Not every AI has it.

4 Treat fresh topics with care

News, prices, scores, and new products change fast. Double-check them on a trusted news site or official page.

General good practice.

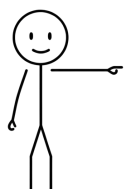

5 Paste in what's new

Got a new article or note? Paste it into the chat and ask about that text. The AI can then use it.

Try: "Here is today's article. Summarize it in three bullets."

General good practice.

Rule of thumb: the diary stops on one date. For anything recent, check it yourself.
